Abstract for Particle Neural Network
Jet classification using a Neural Network

The goal of this work is to create a simple Particle Neural Network toy model that uses machine learning to classify particle groups using simulation data. Specifically, to determine lighter particles from heavier particles in jet data. This project is related to work done in Dr. Salvatore Rappoccio's research group at the University at Buffalo.